The Journal of Dental Hygiene adheres to the following advertising standards:

- Any form of advertising is prohibited within the Journal of Dental Hygiene’s issues or other published materials. Sponsorship of published research is not considered advertising for or endorsing the companies or organizations listed.
- Advertising is permitted on the website for the Journal using the Google Ads platform, and any ads shown follow established standards to meet the requirement of this and other professional associations. ADHA in no way endorses any specific product or service unless otherwise noted.
- Advertising does not, in any way, influence editorial decisions made for the Journal.
- Advertisements that appear on the JDH website are not linked to specific content or the traffic history of the reader.
- The advertising will not violate any dental practice act, or any government regulation or statute.
- Advertising indicating any specific type of endorsement on behalf of ADHA will only be accepted upon approval of the Board of Trustees.
