

What is the Global Dental Hygiene Research Conference?

GDHRC is a two-and-a-half day in-person program hosted in Fall 2023 in Chicago, IL, that will bring together the international dental hygiene research community. This gathering of dental hygiene thought leaders creates a platform and opportunity to present original research conducted by dental hygienists.

This unique meeting will focus on an exchange of new information and relevant topics that will advance research agendas and contribute to improving dental hygiene practice and education around the world by translating science to practice and oral health to total body health.

Who Makes Up the GDHRC Community?

The GDHRC is comprised of national and international dental hygiene researchers and educators who contribute to the advancement of dental hygiene science and education.

Objectives

1. Disseminate findings from original research that will expand the body of knowledge for the discipline of dental hygiene.
2. Share perspectives on national research agendas and opportunities for their refinement and expansion.
3. Explore commonalities in research interests and foster future collaborations.
4. Utilize research to improve the health of the public.

Sponsorship Opportunities

Who Should Support GDHRC?

The profession of dental hygiene continues to grow and evolve. Companies that promote medical-dental integration and support the development of innovative technology that affects day-to-day practice and patient care should be present as attendees revealing recent and new research findings ready for publication.

Why Sponsorship is the Best Option

Sponsoring the GDHR Conference is the most effective way to show your current and prospective customers that you support Global Dental Hygiene Research. Because exhibit space, registration and advertising are included at most sponsorship levels, becoming a sponsor offers the best value and maximizes your presence at the conference.
